Online forex trading illegal, not regulated – BoG: The Bank of Ghana (BoG) in its occasional financial literacy education document has warned that online forex trading is illegal and not regulated in the country. According to the Central Bank, Section (3) of the Foreign Exchange Act, 2006 (Act 723) prohibits persons from trading in forex whether online or otherwise without a license from the Bank. Adding that, licenses issued particularly to a Forex bureau for foreign exchange transactions are meant solely for on-the-spot selling and buying of foreign currencies. Additionally, the Central Bank asserts that forex bureaus are prohibited from engaging in forex forward exchange rate trading. The BoG also advised the public against dealing with ‘black market’ operators noting that individuals are likely to trade in fake currency or be drawn into money laundering. (Norvanreports)
