

NEWS HEADLINES

- ❖ Take Mutilated Currency to Commercial Banks, Do Not Repair It — BoG: The Bank of Ghana has warned against repairing damaged cedi banknotes with adhesives, as this can compromise currency integrity and lead to financial losses. The Bank highlighted that no alterations should be made to mutilated notes intended for recirculation, as improperly repaired notes may be rejected by banks and retailers. The public is urged to submit damaged notes to commercial banks for assessment, requiring that more than half of the original note be presented. Repairs can obscure security features and disrupt currency processing systems. The Bank emphasizes the importance of careful handling and reporting of unauthorized repairs to maintain currency integrity. (Norvanreports)
- ❖ BoG Places Banks and Customers on Notice Over Rising Digital Fraud Risks: The Bank of Ghana has warned about increasing digital financial fraud, stressing the need for enhanced financial literacy and cybersecurity. Consumers are advised against sharing sensitive information like Mobile Money PINs, as legitimate institutions do not request such details through insecure channels. The warning highlights fraudsters' evolving tactics, urging caution against investment schemes promising high returns with low risk. Customers should closely monitor transactions, use strong passwords, and report suspicious activities. The advisory recognizes varying levels of financial literacy, calling for tailored communication to aid understanding of digital financial products. (Norvanreports)
